Larry,

Nice chatting with you. As we discussed, please confirm that this email request for Ms. Bennett's documents and testimony concerning the reasons why Simon & Schuster did not and/or refused to publish the Book by James Risen, Pay Any Price supersedes your 23-item document request (Attachment A), which has been withdrawn.

I will confer with Ms. Bennett regarding your request for her consent to proceeding by videoconference. In the meantime, can you tell me if there is a reason why you have noticed her deposition for 1345 Avenue of the Americas? It would be much more convenient to do the deposition at my office in Chatham, New Jersey. Please advise.

Thanks,

Kevin

Yes, we can limit the production in this way, with full reservation of all rights.

The deposition was noticed there because that is where the court reporter is located.

While the depositions of your clients cannot proceed Monday, November 9, 2015 due to your obstructionist tactics, we will be moving the Southern District on an expedited basis to enforce the subpoenas, including the one for Tina Bennett which call for document production and testimony on the following day, November 10, 2015. Once filed, we will provide the pleadings to you and the other counsel of record.

In the meantime, all counsel should let me know if they consent to our motion to compel video-conference depositions so we can represent this to the federal court. Pl let me know in the next few hours, as we are hoping to file today.

Larry,

I am sorry but we cannot consent to produce Ms. Bennett for a videoconference deposition on Tuesday. While we are attempting to gather the documents you have agreed to accept in lieu of the 23 items requested in Attachment A to your subpoena—that is, documents “concerning the reasons why Simon & Schuster did not and/or refused to publish . . . Pay Any Price”—I cannot imagine you will be able to identify and forward to me the exhibits you plan to use in examining Ms. Bennett on Tuesday. In all events, Ms. Bennett’s deposition should await resolution of your motion to enforce the subpoena. Kindly copy me on that motion when it is filed.

Thanks,

Larry,

As you know, we represent Tina Bennett in this matter. I left a message for you this morning but, having not heard back from you, I thought it wise to convey my position with respect to your subpoena for testimony and documents from Ms. Bennett via email. Specifically, I write to make certain that you understand that, in light of (a) your cancellation of the Simon & Shuster and Painton depositions (scheduled for Monday); (b) your threatened motion to enforce your subpoenas for those depositions and that of Ms. Bennett (scheduled for Tuesday); (c) your failure to provide me with the exhibits you intend to use at Ms. Bennett's deposition; and (d) your statement—despite agreeing that you would withdraw your 23-item document request in favor of a request that Ms. Bennett provide you with testimony and documents “concerning the reasons why Simon & Schuster did not and/or refused to publish . . . Pay Any Price”—that you were acting “with full reservation of all rights” (apparently so that you can compel Ms. Bennett's deposition and documents at a later date if you so choose), we will not produce Ms. Bennett for her deposition on Tuesday or provide you with any documents responsive to your subpoena pending an order of the court. Rather, we will await your motion to compel, will oppose that motion when we receive it, and will abide whatever order the court enters with respect to that motion.

Please understand that Ms. Bennett has no intention of disregarding any lawful order of the court, including an order compelling her deposition and production of documents. To the contrary, it has been and remains her intention to cooperate with you in every way. But given the dispute that has arisen with respect to your subpoena and that for the related S & S and Painton depositions, we think it prudent to await resolution of that dispute before producing Ms. Bennett for deposition or providing you with any documents in response to your subpoena.

If you have any questions, please call me. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Dear Mr. Klayman,

To my understanding, a waiver is the intentional relinquishment of a known right. Please be advised that Ms. Bennett has not waived her objection to your subpoena, which I do not believe was served in accordance with the applicable rules of court. My position stands as stated in my email of approximately thirty minutes ago. I am happy to discuss this by phone if you care to do so.

Please understand that Ms. Bennett has no intention of disregarding any lawful order of the court, including an order compelling her deposition and production of documents. To the contrary, it has been and remains her intention to cooperate with you in every way. But given the dispute that has arisen with respect to your subpoena and that for the related S & S and Painton depositions, we think it prudent to await resolution of that dispute before producing Ms. Bennett for deposition or providing you with any documents in response to your subpoena.

If you have any questions, please call me. Thank you for your attention to this matter.

Best,

Kevin

Your last correspondence of today is not in good faith.

While the depositions of your clients cannot proceed Monday, November 9, 2015 due to your obstructionist tactics, we will be moving the Southern District on an expedited basis to enforce the subpoenas, including the one for Tina Bennett which call for document production and testimony on the following day, November 10, 2015. Once filed, we will provide the pleadings to you and the other counsel of record.

In the meantime, all counsel should let me know if they consent to our motion to compel video-conference depositions so we can represent this to the federal court. Pl let me know in the next few hours, as we are hoping to file today.

Govern yourself accordingly.

To my understanding, a waiver is the intentional relinquishment of a known right. As you know, we represent Tina Bennett in this matter. I left a message for you this morning but, having not heard back from you, I thought it wise to convey my position with respect to your subpoena for testimony and documents from Ms. Bennett via email. Specifically, I write to make certain that you understand that, in light of (a) your cancellation of the Simon & Shuster and Painton depositions (scheduled for Monday); (b) your threatened motion to enforce your subpoenas for those depositions and that of Ms. Bennett (scheduled for Tuesday); (c) your failure to provide me with the exhibits you intend to use at Ms. Bennett's deposition; and (d) your statement—despite agreeing that you would withdraw your 23-item document request in favor of a request that Ms. Bennett provide you with testimony and documents “concerning the reasons why Simon & Schuster did not and/or refused to publish . . . Pay Any Price”—that you were acting “with full reservation of all rights” (apparently so that you can compel Ms. Bennett's deposition and documents at a later date if you so choose), we will not produce Ms. Bennett for her deposition on Tuesday or provide you with any documents responsive to your subpoena pending an order of the court. Rather, we will await your motion to compel, will oppose that motion when we receive it, and will abide whatever order the court enters with respect to that motion.
